PINK FRINGE

PINK FRINGE

PINK FRINGE IS OUR IN-HOUSE PRODUCTION COMPANY, DEDICATED TO BUILDING YEAR ROUND QUEER CULTURE IN BRIGHTON & HOVE.

We're presenting four outstanding shows this year that simply must not be missed. From Manchester, co-presented by Queer Contact, we have Kate O' Donnell's Big Girl's Blouse, a one-woman show about growing up trans* in the 1970s, and Eggs Collective Get a Round, a celebratory yet honest exploration of a Girls Night Out.

All the way from New York, we have THE CHRISTEENE MACHINE, a guerrilla cabaret that blends gender politics, hip-hop, utter filth, and a smattering of musical theatre ("KILL FOR A TICKET" Boy George).

And to top it all off, we hail the glittering return of Miss Behave's Gameshow; anarchic, post apocalyptic and awash with sequins and cardboard – Winner of best Cabaret at the Adelaide Fringe Festival 2015.

Eve is a 13 year old vampire. She has never left her room and everything she knows about the world comes from what her sister Tabby has told her. Eve lives in a world without sunlight. A world crammed full of story book characters but with just one living, breathing human being to cuddle. Eve does everything a good little vampire girl should, including drinking her (human) sister's blood. But one day, Tabby tires of opening her veins and, in a breath, the whole world changes.

A LITTLE RESPECT

HUNGRY WOLF VISIONARY YOUTH THEATRE

Irreverent and dark, A Little Respect is a sexy little thriller filled with intrigue, waspish one-liners and homoeroticism. What first appears to be a traditional piece of situation comedy quickly becomes something sharper and more sophisticated. Stolen kisses, adolescent cruelty and cyber revenge keeps you guessing until the final thrillingly hilarious scene. Fresh, spiky and funny, A Little Respect is a shot in the arm for fringe theatre.

EDITH, ELIZABETH AND I

Inspired by the life and works of Edith Sitwell. Juliet attempts to put on a play about her heroines, Edith Sitwell and Elizabeth I, but discovers that telling the tales of others has its pitfalls, particularly when the subjects themselves turn up, and force her to face a few home truths. A witty, honest and moving one-woman show with a cast of three, all vying for the role of leading lady.

In Hard Graft, David Sheppard investigates how much can change between one generation of a family and the next and the lengths we go to bridge the divide. A performance about reluctant fathers and wayward sons set against the backdrop of the occasional mining disaster and the fading industrial landscapes of South Wales. Produced by Faith Dodkins. BIG GIRL'S KATE O'DONNELL BLOUSE

Sometimes it's hard to be a woman... Who knew what being transgender was in the 1970s? Not Kate's family. To be fair, crispy pancakes had only just landed in the Midlands so she had her work cut out. Big Girl's Blouse sees Kate make a song and dance about her life using humour, music and costume to tell her story.

In a world that tells us we're not rich, thin or successful enough, Eggs Collective wonder if the basic principles of a good night out might make the world a better place. The Room in the Elephant is that space made between men to discuss those things ordinarily best avoided. Composed from taped conversations made in the heat of the moment, in the dead of night, this louche celebration of masculine juvenility dares to be about exactly what's on our minds. Made by the men who made Buddhism: Is it Just for Losers?, this fine-art pantomime features fake hypnosis, screams in different accents, and promises to be good.
